"I am Andrea Jarach, editor of the Welcome Magazines, periodicals that we have been publishing for 13 years for international visitors in some of the most important cities for tourism in Italy. To keep up with the upward trend in tourism, last year we added Verona to the traditional editions of Venice, Florence, Turin and have expanded our Milan magazine to the Lombardy region.

Welcome Magazine is here to accompany visitors in their discovery of Italy's attractions. As you can see in the following pages, the Welcome Magazine offers useful information about events, shopping, food and wine, everything that can interest the visitor answering the question: "what can I do, what can I discover during my stay?". Our aim is to create memorable experiences of the visit, also by linking together the different opportunities offered by the area. Our mission is to provide essential tourist information for the benefit of visitors who choose wonderful Italy as their destination.

You will find the Welcome Magazines in the approximately 500 hotels belonging to the Welcome Magazine circuit in Italy. You can therefore use the traditional paper editions, but don't miss the chance to browse through the pages of the digital and interactive editions also on your computers and smartphones.

And for all of you who love shopping and have a non-EU passport: since October 2022, Welcome Smart Network has become a partner of Global Blue, the leading service company for obtaining tax refunds. Keep an eye on our pages and our website www.welcomemagazine.it to enjoy the important benefits offered by Global Blue. Welcome to Italy, discover and enjoy!"

1 BASILICA DI SAN MARCO

This is the most important catholic church in the city. The original church dates back to before the year 1000, while its famous polychrome façade, embellished with mosaics and bas-reliefs, is a 13th century addition. Inside, a triumphant array of domes and transepts, mosaics and gold, marble and numerous other treasures.

2 PALAZZO DUCALE

A masterpiece of Gothic art and a repository of innumerable art treasures, it features a number of different and intricate architectural and ornamental details, dating from the 9th century. Formerly the residence and government centre of the Doge sit not only houses temporary exhibitions but can also be visited via self-guided routes that allow visitors access to all of its rooms, superbly decorated by artists like Titian, Tiepolo and Tintoretto.

3 CANAL GRANDE

Although it is known as 'the most beautiful street in the world', the Grand Canal is the main waterway of Venice. Lined on both sides by an uninterrupted series of palaces, churches, hotels and other public buildings, it offers a journey back into history, evoking the pomp and splendor of the ancient Serenissima. Almost directly opposite the Piazza San Marco, where the Grand Canal empties into the lagoon, the Punta della Dogana former harbour stands at an important point. Today it hosts important collective or monographic exhibitions, featuring works from the Pinault Collection.

4 PONTE DEI SOSPIRI

A Baroque bridge that, by crossing the Rio di Palazzo, once connected the Palazzo Ducale to the prisons, and today it is one of Venice's most romantic sights. The 'sighs' from which its name derives are not those of lovers, but those of condemned prisoners, emitted as they were led down to the cells. It can be accessed on a visit to the Palazzo Ducale.

5 TEATRO LA FENICE

Twice destroyed by fire and twice restored to its former splendour (the last time was between 1996 and 2003), for centuries it has been Venice's principal stage for world-class opera, music, theater, and ballet. However, its high point came in the 19th century when it hosted the 'premieres' of operas by Rossini, Bellini, Donizetti and Verdi. Not only strongly associated with Venice's cultural heritage, it is also a stunning feat of architecture.

6 PONTE DI RIALTO

This is the oldest and most beautiful of the four bridges crossing the Grand Canal. Originally built during medieval times as a pontoon bridge at the canal's narrowest point to facilitate access to the popular Rialto Market, it is still a hub of commerce and is lined on both sides by shops. It includes as many as 120 steps. Witness to centuries of history, it is exciting to cross it, but even more spectacular when seen from the water, perhaps aboard a gondola.

7 SCALA CONTARINI DEL BOVOLO

A rare gem of Venetian architecture, just steps from Campo San Manin: a combination of Renaissance, Gothic and Byzantine elements. The external 'bovolo' (snail-shell) stairwell of Palazzo Contarini is enclosed in a cylinder perforated like lace. The architectural beauty of the stairwell, combined with the view that can be enjoyed on reaching the top, is well worth a visit.

8 GALLERIE DELL'ACCADEMIA

They host the most important collection of Venetian and Veneto artworks dated between the 14th and 18th centuries.

Here you can admire masterpieces by Giovanni Bellini, Giorgione, Carpaccio, Titian, Tintoretto, Veronese and Tiepolo and works by several important landscape artists including Canaletto, Bellotto and Guardi. The monumental complex hosting these works occupies the ancient church of Santa Maria della Carità and a complex designed by Andrea Palladio in 1561.

9 CHIESA AND SCUOLA GRANDE DI SAN ROCCO

A Renaissance complex consisting of a church and adjoining palace, it was built as a sign of devotion to San Rocco who was called upon to protect the plague-stricken population of Venice during the 15th century. The interiors are filled with numerous treasures, including an impressive number of works by Tintoretto as well those by Tiepolo and Giorgione.

10 SAN GIORGIO MAGGIORE

This small island is part of the panorama that can be enjoyed from St. Mark's square and is part of the San Marco sestiere. The church of San Giorgio Maggiore is one of the masterpieces of Andrea Palladio. The monumental complex of the former Benedictine monastery (founded in the 10th century) is now home to the Cini Foundation arts centre hosting 'Le Stanze del Vetro' cultural project, devoted to the study and appreciation of 20th century Venetian glass art.

11 LIDO DI VENEZIA

The narrow strip of land that extends for a dozen kilometres in front of Venice, dividing the Lagoon from the Adriatic sea, is an island, a town with its own history and a natural reserve, but also a jet-setters' paradise, with luxury hotels, the Palazzo del Cinema and exclusive Art Nouveau villas. The Lido offers beach lovers 15 km of fine sandy beaches, from the lighthouse of Punta Sabbioni to the picturesque town of Cavallino. In September, it becomes the world capital of cinema.

12 THE GHETTO

The Jewish ghetto of Venice, the first ever, was established in 1516. It is located in a secluded sestiere of Cannaregio. A walk through 'calli', 'campi' and 'campielli' allows visitors to soak up a magical, cocoon-like atmosphere that brings to mind Shakespeare's play the 'Merchant of Venice'. Here you can admire ancient synagogues, the 'tower houses', the 'schole' and the workshops.

13 THE ISLANDS

Although the whole of Venice lies on an archipelago, an 'excursion to the islands' generally means a half-day cruise on a boat to visit the islands of Murano, Torcello or Burano, three charming, small islands, rich in history and tradition. Murano is famous throughout the world for its hand-blown glass (artisanal workshops still display glassmakers at work). Torcello, birthplace of the lagoon, once a thriving town with 8,000 inhabitants, is today a semi-rural island with only 17 permanent residents and two medieval churches that speak poignantly of past glories. Burano is one of the most photographed sights in the world, thanks to colourful houses reflected in its canals. It is also famous for its artisanal lace work and a particular kind of biscuit, which also resembles lace.

CANAL GRANDE

THE WATERWAY OF WONDERS

PH. © ZHUKOV OLEG / SHUTTERSTOCK.COM

— Venice's major water artery, measuring approximately 4km in length and between 30 and 70 metres in width, follows a natural channel that traces a reverse 'S' course that divides the city from the north-west to the south-east, connecting various landmarks of historic, artistic and touristic interest.

— The Grand Canal is lined with sumptuous villas and palaces that either belong, or belonged in the past, to noble Venetian families, and takes visitors on a trip through five centuries of history, from the 13th to the 18th centuries. It was originally a gateway to the Rialto market, and later became the focal point of the lagoon's mercantile life. Nowadays, it's a symbol of the city.

— The Grand Canal is best appreciated by boat, either on a private water taxi or on the line 1 vaporetto, which departs from San Marco Vallarosso. In order to get the best view, we recommend sitting outside at the rear of the boat (the tour lasts for approximately one hour).

— Midway on the Grand Canal, we find the iconic Rialto Bridge, for centuries the only means of crossing the Grand Canal on foot. To enjoy a bird's eye view of the bridge, we suggest that you head to the luxury department store T Fondaco dei Tedeschi and take an elevator up to its terrace (don't let the queues discourage you). From here you can enjoy a breathtaking view over the Grand Canal and the roofs of the city. The view at sunset is particularly spectacular and the terrace is open until 7.45pm.

All about the gondola

— Everyone knows that the gondola is Venice's most typical craft: made from 8 different types of wood, gondolas are constructed in boat yards called 'squeri' by gondola builders – the 'squeraroli' and 'maestri d'ascia' (masters of the ax) – who have been in this line of work since the 11th century.

— Private gondolas no longer exist and the last person who owned one was art heiress Peggy Guggenheim.

— Every gondola is 11 metres long, 1.40 metres wide and 0.65 metres high. The oar is made of beech and the 'forcola', the stylized oarlock, is made of walnut. Eight kinds of different wood are used to build a gondola – oak, elm, lime, larch, fir, cherry, walnut, and mahogany. The only parts in metal are the 'ferro' in the front and the 'risso' at the back.

— It's not easy to become a professional gondolier. Requirements include attending a special school, passing a public competition set by the 'Ente Gondola' and being apprenticed to a professional gondolier for 6 to 12 months. The final step includes passing a rigorous practical exam.

— Traditionally, only men were allowed to be gondoliers. The first female gondolier – or gondoliera – was licensed in 2010. Giorgia Boscolo, the daughter of 40-year gondolier veteran, was the first to pass the requirements and obtain a license.

— One of the few remaining 'squeri' still operating today in Venice is located in the sestiere of Dorsoduro near San Trovaso (see photo), between the Accademia and the Zattere. The building housing the 'squeri' resembles a typical mountain chalet because, traditionally, gondola builders came from the Veneto mountains of Cadore. Following its construction, the gondola is lowered into the water via a slide – a celebratory moment (www.squerosantrovaso.com).

Rialto and its surroundings

With its markets, 'osterie' and artisanal 'botteghe', the ancient and picturesque neighbourhood of Rialto reveals one of the most authentic sides of Venice. BY SIMONA P.K. DAVIDDI

A MONUMENTAL LANDMARK. The Rialto Bridge is one of the most famous and widely photographed landmarks of Venice. Not only the undisputed icon of postcards and 'selfies', but also the oldest bridge in the city (until 1854 it was the only means of crossing the Grand Canal on foot). Located in the picturesque Rialto neighbourhood, it is a heady mix of shops, eateries and architecture, where the days are marked by the cries of the vendors of its famous, bustling market and by the comings and goings of Venetians and tourists who are either in search of a traditional 'osteria' or 'bacaro' for an 'ombra de vin' or a 'cicheto', or looking to make a purchase from one of the innumerable artisanal 'botteghe' that line its 'calli' and 'campielli' and flank both sides of the bridge.

FROM HISTORY TO LEGEND. The history of this iconic bridge dates back to the year 1000 when it was built as a pontoon bridge at the canal's narrowest point. Due to increased traffic it was replaced with a wooden bridge in 1181, known as the 'Ponte della Moneta' both due to the toll that people had to pay when crossing it and because the city's mint was located at its easternmost end. In 1250, its wooden piles were replaced by a mobile structure and its name was changed to the Rialto bridge. A dark period followed. In fact, during this time, the bridge collapsed and was damaged several times. It was only in 1588 that the Senate of the Serenissima decided to announce a competition to finally rebuild a stone bridge. Numerous renowned architects submitted their projects, including Sansovino, Vignola and Palladio. However the daring but scenically impact-making design submitted by the aptly named Antonio da Ponte was chosen. His bridge consisted of a single 22 meter stone arch span, supported by a broad rectangular deck carrying two arcades of shops and 'botteghe' fronting on three roadways. Legend has it that da Ponte was visited by Satan himself who, in exchange for his help, asked the architect to pledge the soul of the first person crossing the bridge to him. The architect thought that he would trick Satan by having a cock cross the bridge for the first time. However, on learning about this deception, Satan vindicated himself by tricking da Ponte's pregnant wife into crossing the bridge. Her child was stillborn, and according to legend, his soul wandered haplessly, for years, on the Rialto bridge, until a gondolier finally helped it to cross over to the other side. Even the famous street market boasts a storied past. In fact, historic documents testify to its presence way back in 1097 when it was much larger than its current counterpart and sold exotic goods and spices and precious fabrics.

THE FAMOUS MARKET. Currently Venice's market par excellence, it is divided into the Pescaria, where fish caught in the lagoon are sold, and the Erbaria, whose vendors sell only the freshest, seasonal fruit and vegetables. Although a visit to this market means elbowing one's way among throngs of Venetian shoppers, the market nevertheless boasts two gems of historic and artistic interest: a loggia dating back to 1907 featuring a blaze of maritime and symbolic decorations, including a number of esoteric elements that are mixed in with the fish, lobsters and octopi sculpted on the capitals of its colonnade. More attentive visitors will also notice a marble plaque embedded in one of its red brick facades, which shows regulations set centuries ago for minimum allowable sizes for lagoon fish.

FOR SHOPPING ADDICTS. However, Rialto also means shopping. While strolling through the 'rione's tiny streets or when crossing its bridge, you'll come across several unusual shops that are imbued with the atmosphere of a bygone era. These include antique shops, artisans' workshops, old book binding shops where books are still bound according to time-honoured tradition, and jewelry stores selling original creations made from Murano glass beads. On the other hand, those in search of an amazing experience, should head to the old post office which now houses the Fondaco dei Tedeschi, a lavish, high-end department store and a magnificent feat of architecture that has been updated to brilliantly balance the old with new. The building boasts a marvelous terrace offering visitors a 360-degree view over Venice.

» A HUB OF COMMERCE
The Rialto Bridge is the dividing line between the districts of San Marco and San Polo. It is lined on both sides by shops, and includes 120 steps. Left, the Rialto Market, a one-of-a-kind place crowded with Venetians and tourists.

MUSEO DEL VETRO, UNTIL 7 MAY

◀ MORPHOGENESIS OF GLASS

CONTEMPORARY ART After the great success of Tony Cragg's solo exhibition, the Museo del Vetro in Murano welcomes another major exhibition: "Shattering Beauty", a solo show by Simon Berger, the Swiss artist famous throughout the world for his portraits etched in glass. Some 20 works, all previously unseen, explore the fragility of the human condition through the artist's hypnotic and innovative sculptural practice. Contrary to the tradition of blown or modelled glass, in fact, Simon Berger's sculptural gesture is reminiscent of the act of etching and sculpting on the glass surface. A technique that succeeds in enhancing the limitless expressive possibilities of this age-old material that is still too little explored, testing the glass by pushing it to its limits, to the point of breaking: brushstrokes become hammer blows on a sheet of glass, causing cracks and breaks in the facial features.

▲ VITTORE CARPACCIO, WITNESS OF AN ERA

ART Vittore Carpaccio's early 16th century paintings celebrate Venice at the turn of the 15th century, when La Serenissima dominated a vast maritime-commercial empire and flourished as a great centre of culture. Within fantastic settings enriched with details and references to his extraordinary city - both with religious subjects and civil works - his masterpieces give us the very essence of "Venetian-ness".

The last time an exhibition was dedicated to this painter was in 1963 at the Doge's Palace. Today's exhibition focuses on the reconstruction of the painter's artistic and creative journey from the earliest works of his youth to the lofty works of his maturity, also enriched by a substantial nucleus of autograph drawings.

CA' PESARO, UNTIL 10 APRIL

▼ FROM CARPACCIO TO PETRUS: A NEW READING OF THE PAST

CONTEMPORARY ART Ca' Pesaro pays homage to the great Vittore Carpaccio exhibition at the Doge's Palace by presenting the latest cycle of works by the Milanese painter Marco Petrus, collected under the title of "Capricci". The series takes its cue from the rigorous and measured lines of the typical Venetian breeches worn by certain figures that animate the scenes of some of Carpaccio's and Giovanni Mansueti's canvases, exhibited in the rooms of the Gallerie dell'Accademia in Venice. From a meticulous analysis of the decorative details, his work develops in the repetition and reproduction of the chromatic textures, finally becoming explicit in the reflection and inflection of the rhythms that emerge: a large installation is thus realised, a sort of mental game and pictorial exercise.

PEGGY GUGGENHEIM COLLECTION,
1 APRIL-18 SEPTEMBER

COLOUR AND LIGHT BY EDMONDO BACCI

CONTEMPORARY ART With around eighty works, including paintings and drawings never before exhibited, from national and international museums and private collections, this is the first and most comprehensive solo exhibition dedicated to the Venetian artist Edmondo Bacchi (1913-1978). Bacchi was above all an artist of the world, one of the few Italian artists able to achieve success during his lifetime, exhibiting in the most important national and international museums and art galleries. Bacchi fits into the narrow circle of artistic excellence in the Veneto region, which also includes Tancredi Parmeggiani and Emilio Vedova, who achieved international success and recognition in the same years. The exhibition pays tribute to the artist by focusing on the most lyrical and felicitous period of his production, i.e. the 1950s, which marked his success in the Venetian setting, his birthplace and place of inspiration, as well as his consecration at the XXIX Venice International Art Biennale in 1958, which dedicated an entire room to him.

► MONSTROUS FACES AND CARICATURES, FROM LEONARDO TO TIEPOLO

EXHIBITION Starting with Leonardo's "monstrous faces" and the "ridiculous paintings" of the Lombards, the art of caricature flourished in the Venetian lagoon in the first half of the 18th century. This extraordinary and alienating exhibition presents more than 75 works depicting deformed faces, anatomical exaggerations, physiognomic investigations, caricature figures and galleries of human characters created by the great artists active in northern Italy between the 16th and 18th centuries. Also on display are 18 drawings by Leonardo da Vinci including - for the first time in Italy - some sheets from the Collection of the Duke of Devonshire.

A fascinating itinerary, which identifies a line of "northern" continuity from Leonardo's charged and grotesque heads to the caricatures of Anton Maria Zanetti and Giambattista Tiepolo, passing through Francesco Melzi, Paolo Lomazzo, Aurelio Luini, Donato Creti, Arcimboldo, but also Carracci and Parmigianino.

ISOLA DI SAN GIORGIO MAGGIORE,
14 MAY-26 NOVEMBER

DEDICATED TO THE BOHEMIAN GLASS

GLASS ART The next exhibition at LE STANZE DEL VETRO will be dedicated to Bohemian glass after World War II and will present the works of six great masters of contemporary glass sculpture, who created sculptures, stained glass windows, architecture, installations and site-specific works: Václav Cigler, Vladimír Kopecký, Stanislav Libenský and Jaroslava Brychtová, René Roubíček and Miluše Roubíčková.

The exhibition will close with twenty photographs from the Glass Labyrinth series by Josef Sudek. The exhibition aims to tell the story of the emancipation of glass in Bohemia (today's Czech Republic) from the traditional categorisation of applied and decorative art to its use in the creation of important abstract sculptures.

◀ AMONG THE PIONEERS OF SURREALISM

PHOTOGRAPHY Model, photographer, muse, first woman war reporter to document the horrors of the concentration camps liberated by American troops, 20th century icon: Lee Miller was all this and much more.

And life rewarded her with love and friends, but also with pain and posthumous recognition. Now an exhibition does justice to this woman who was as beautiful as she was brilliant and talented, removing her from the shadow of Man Ray that always accompanied her, to reveal their deep and complicated relationship: Man Ray, first her teacher, then her love and finally her great friend. A woman who went through life with passion and determination, not only as Man Ray's muse but as a professional equal, who inspired her mentor with the photographic technique of solarisation that he later adopted as his artistic signature.

The exhibition curated by Victoria Noel-Johnson presents around 140 photographs, some art objects and video documents in the prestigious and exclusive venue of Palazzo Franchetti.

TEATRO LA FENICE, 16-28 MARCH

► VIVA VERDI

OPERA The fifth opera in Giuseppe Verdi's catalogue - and the first of the Venetian theatre's five commissions to the musician - is staged in a new production co-produced with the Palau de les Arts Reina Sofia in Valencia, directed by Andrea Bernard, the sets by Alberto Beltrame, the costumes by Elena Beccaro and the light design by Marco Alba, and with Riccardo Frizza conducting of the Teatro La Fenice Orchestra and Chorus. The cast will include for the main roles Anastasia Bartoli, Piero Pretti, Michele Pertusi and Ernesto Petti. An opera in four acts based on Victor Hugo's "Hernani", it debuted on 9 March 1844 to much acclaim. In the story, Verdi put characters marginalised by society in the limelight, against the backdrop of 16th century Spain. The music is pure Verdi, with sweeping choruses, passionate arias and thrilling concert notes. In addition, the narrative of three men courting a single woman gives Verdi the opportunity to explore the expressive qualities of three male voice types: tenor, baritone and bass.

MUSEO FORTUNY AT PALAZZO PESARO DEGLI ORFEI

HOUSE MUSEUM Two years after the tragic Acqua Alta event that damaged the building, the Mariano Fortuny House Museum is returned to Venice. The Venetian Gothic palazzo was the home and workshop of Mariano Fortuny y Madrazo and his wife Henriette Negrin, a point of reference for Europe's intellectual elite in the early 20th century. The spaces have been reorganised and equipped to become a permanent collection and a venue for temporary exhibitions related to contemporary art.

PALAZZO GRASSI,
12 MARCH 2023 – 7 JANUARY 2024

◀ PHOTOGRAPHIC TREASURES OF THE XX CENTURY

PHOTOGRAPHY World premiere at Palazzo Grassi dedicated to masterpieces from the Condé Nast archives, some of which were recently acquired by the Pinault Collection. The exhibition brings together over four hundred works representing events, social phenomena and illustrious personalities of the last century, from the 1910s to the early 1980s. 150 international artists are represented, including the famous photographers Edward Steichen, Berenice Abbott, Cecil Beaton, Lee Miller, André Kertész, Horst P. Horst, Diane Arbus, Irving Penn, Helmut Newton. The works are in dialogue with 'Chronorama Redux', a project that offers a contemporary view through the works of four artists: Tarrah Krajnak, Erik N. Mack, Giulia Andreani and Daniel Spivakov.

PUNTA DELLA DOGANA,
2 APRIL – 27 NOVEMBER

▶ DIALOGUES BETWEEN GREAT ARTISTS

EXHIBITION The exhibition "Icônes", running from 2 April to 26 November at Punta della Dogana, presents a selection of emblematic works from the Pinault Collection in unprecedented dialogues with great artists such as David Hammons/Agnes Martin; Danh Vo/Rudolf Stingel; Sherrie Levine/On Kawara. Living paintings, rituals and everything that makes the image a space of relationship between human beings and that transcends them constitutes the heart of the reflection proposed by the exhibition. Between figuration and abstraction, the exhibition invokes all the facets of the image in the artistic context - painting, video, sound, installation, performance - through a selection of emblematic works from the Pinault Collection and unprecedented dialogues between artists particularly dear to it.

The allure of the region

Veneto is one of the most visited regions in Europe and offers several attractive destinations for a fun, relaxing out-of-town experience. The cities are well connected by train but as an alternative you can either hire a car or a car with a driver.

Half an hour by train from Venice

Treviso: the city is a small gem, which can be visited entirely on foot. Lying at the heart of the city, just a stone's throw from the station, Piazza dei Signori is the ideal spot to stop and enjoy either a local Prosecco-based aperitivo, or a light lunch. The area's neighbouring streets are packed with elegant shops, cut across by pretty canals offering lots of fabulous photo opportunities. Both the city's Casa dei Carraresi and the Santa Caterina museum host important art exhibitions. While in the area, make sure to sample radicchio di Treviso, a homegrown specialty. A go-to destination for a snack is the Osteria dalla Gigia, Via Barberia, 20, whose signature dish is 'mozzarelle in carrozza', a type of fried cheese sandwich.

Padua: home to one of the oldest universities in the world, Padua is a city deserving an entire day's sightseeing. Among the list of things to do, top sights include the Scrovegni Chapel, Giotto's masterpiece, but also the famous Church of Sant'Antonio, a pilgrimage site and the burial place of St Anthony of Padua (1193–1231). The city is also home to the oldest botanical garden in the world, planted in 1545 by Padua's

Verona and the Adige river

Padua, Scrovegni Chapel

Bassano del Grappa

» A UNIQUE BLEND OF HISTORY AND ART

Top, a panoramic view of Verona with the Adige river. Above, the wooden bridge over the River Brenta is a symbol of the small town of Bassano del Grappa: rebuilt many times but always remaining faithful to Palladio's 16th century original. Left, Giotto's magnificent frescoes, covering the walls of Padua's Scrovegni Chapel, narrate events in the lives of the Virgin Mary and Christ. Right, the beautiful castle of Miramare (10 km from Trieste) offers a charming panoramic view.

University medical faculty to study the medicinal properties of rare plants. A new area dedicated to bio-diversity was also recently added, opening up new prospects for the future. In terms of gastronomy, local specialties include a variety of cold cuts and the city's signature 'gallina padovana' which you can taste at the Ai Navigli restaurant in Via Riviera Tiso, 11. La Folperia in Piazza della Frutta is an absolute must for an aperitivo. It's a simple kiosk selling local fish specialties and the king of street food par excellence.

One hour by train from Venice

Vicenza: if you're a fan of Renaissance architecture, take a train and head to Vicenza. Its main square houses the famous basilica designed by Andrea Palladio, the most important architect of the High Renaissance. The entire life of the city revolves around the Basilica. Palladio also designed the city's renowned Teatro Olimpico. This Renaissance marvel is well worth a visit or, failing that, a ticket to one of the many live shows performed here. Stop at a restaurant and sample the city's famous 'Baccalà alla Vicentina' (Vicenza-style codfish) served with polenta. The people of Vicenza are so proud of this dish that the city even has a confraternity dedicated to keeping the 500-year-old recipe of 'Baccalà alla Vicentina' alive, and, believe it or not, there is also a codfish ice cream flavour. The go-to address is El Coq in Piazza dei Signori, where the chef enjoys creating innovative dishes using this important ingredient of Veneto cuisine.

» TOWARDS AUSTRIA AND GERMANY BY TRAIN

One of the best ways to enjoy spectacular panoramic Alpine views is by train. Today, it's possible to travel from Venice to Austria and Germany with daily connections, thanks to OBB Italia, an Austrian railway company. The Railjet, Intercitybus, Nightjet and Eurocitybus connect Venice to the Austrian cities of Villach, Leoben, Innsbruck, Salzburg, Klagenfurt and Vienna safely and comfortably. Specific products and offers have been created for travellers, tailored to the different needs and able to offer not only high quality but also optimal links. Amenities include a top notch dining car for first class passengers. The trip to Vienna lasts eight hours and you can enjoy the changing scenery from the Italian plains to the Austrian Alps. www.obb-italia.com

Trieste, Castle of Miramare

Verona: Founded by the Romans in the 1st century AD, the city of Verona is dotted with pretty palazzi, elegant squares and medieval gems. Best-known as home to star-crossed lovers Romeo and Juliet, its major attractions include the Arena, an architectural remnant of the Roman era, and a venue for the city's annual summer opera festival, the beautiful Castelvecchio Museum and piazza delle Erbe. There are so many churches to see that you'll be spoilt for choice. No visit would be complete without stopping to see San Zeno, a masterpiece of Italian Romanesque style. When you're tired of sightseeing, indulge in a break at one of the city's small 'osterie' for a glass of Valpolicella, the famous wine produced just a short distance from here. Before leaving Verona, make sure to head to pasticceria Flego in Piazza Borsari 9, to purchase a box of 'Baci di Giulietta', the city's signature sweet treats made from almonds and walnuts.

Bassano del Grappa: this picturesque town lying at the foot of the mountains is renowned for its namesake spirit, grappa. Its Palladian covered wooden bridge over the River Brenta is a highlight of the small historic centre. Also known as the Ponte Vecchio or the Ponte Alpini, it serves as a reminder of the events that took place during World War I. The city is also famous for its centuries-old production of handcrafted ceramics that you can purchase at one of the town's many shops. While in the area, make sure to book a guided tour of one of the distilleries that produce grappa, Italy's 'acquavite' of choice. One of the most famous is Poli. Located in via Gamba 6, this renowned distillery also boasts a must-visit Grappa Museum. At the end of the tour, guests will be treated to a tasting session, accompanied by sweet or savoury snacks. Opened in December 2010, and located at number 8 Salita Ferracina, Palazzo delle Misure is the ideal spot for a pre or post-dinner drink. In addition to an excellent selection of local wines, the venue also features an entire room dedicated to absinthe, where you can taste historical brands dating from the late 1800s to the early 1900s.

Two hours by train from Venice

Trieste: just a two-hour train ride from Venice, the city of Trieste is a must-visit destination. The port and its architecture, reminiscent of central European cities, blend to create an elegant, captivating backdrop. When visiting Trieste you can remain in the centre and stroll through its picturesque alleys, or head to Miramare, the beautiful castle built in the late 1850s by Archduke Maximilian, brother of Austrian Emperor Franz Joseph. Sitting on a rocky outcrop overlooking the sea, both the castle – whose interior décor has remained intact – and the park are well worth a visit. A ride on the Opicina tram which connects the centre of Trieste with the village of Villa Opicina in the hills above is definitely unmissable. Inaugurated in 1902, the 'tram de Opicina' (as it's known in the local dialect) climbs up five kilometers, including 800 meters on a 26% incline, across splendid landscapes and with wonderful views of the gulf. This is a unique opportunity to take some wonderful photos. Trieste is the Mediterranean's main coffee port, and it's also a hub for the coffee industry. In fact, the city is home to Illy, one of the world's best-known coffee brands. Countless locales bear witness to the city's history, and, if you head to Piazza Unità d'Italia you can choose your favourite. The best place for an aperitivo is Urbanis, in Piazza della Borsa 15. In addition to other symbols, the venue's mosaic flooring features the Bora, the wind that blows over Trieste.

Guidelines

This directory, grouped by category, is a list of establishments recommended by the editors and includes regular advertisers.

MAP LOCATIONS - Note that references in bold at the end of each listing (A1, B5 etc) refer to the coordinates on the street maps on pages 46-47.

TRANSPORT - References to vaporetto lines and stops are based on departure from the Santa Lucia railway station.

SHOPPING - This directory, grouped by category, is a list of establishments recommended by the editors of Where magazine and includes regular advertisers. Based on statistical evidence, the most popular luxury brands are grouped under the separate category "Top Brands", which be found on page 27. Sevelar unusual shops, stocking items and rarities for collectors or aficionados in specific product categories, are listed under "Passion Shopping" rather than in the standard shopping sections. Shopping hours are generally from 10am to 7pm; less centrally located shops still take the traditional lunch break. Most shops are closed on Sundays (except those located in central Venice) and on Monday mornings. Ask your concierge. Visitors should note that VAT is 22% and it is generally included in the price of goods.

» TAX-FREE SHOPPING
By law, non-EU residents are entitled to reclaim the VAT paid on items purchased and exported from the EU: before finalizing a purchase, they should ask the shop assistant whether they are eligible for a tax refund.

TASTING

Reservations for most restaurants are strongly advised. In Italy, service is included in the price meaning that although tipping is not compulsory, it is obviously appreciated as a sign of satisfaction. Some menus include the word "coperto", a small surcharge corresponding to the cost of the service and bread. Although no dress code exists in Italy, semiformal clothing is usually considered de rigueur at restaurants. All restaurants and bars are non-smoking unless a separate smokers' area is specifically offered. Set meals: prices are per person and usually refer to a 3-course meal (beverages excluded).

€ = 30€ or less / €€ = 31-50€ / €€€ = 51-100€ / €€€€ = 101-150€ / €€€€€ = 150€ and above.

ITINERARIES

Information about our selection of museums and monuments is checked as carefully as possible. However, opening hours and site accessibility are subject to change depending on the time of the year. Ask your concierge.

All details are correct at the time of going to press but several details can change: ask your concierge to double-check all information.

Traditional Masks

In Venice masks were so popular that around 1400 the artisans who made them were officially recognized with their own guild. These masks, made from papier-mâché decorated with jewels, fabrics and ribbons, were not only worn at Carnival but also throughout the rest of the year, including the feasts of the Republic and on Ascension and Boxing Day. Here's a short guide that will allow you to distinguish between 'tabarri', 'morette' and 'baute'. The Bauta is worn with a dark cloak known as a 'tabarro' and a black tricorn hat which is placed on the head, over the tabarro. It allowed wearers to eat and drink without ever having to remove it, meaning that they were thus able to retain their anonymity. Another mask that was popular in Venice was the Moretta: a black velvet oval mask that was the favourite disguise of women. It was worn with a wide-brimmed hat and embellished with veils. Wearers kept it in place by biting on a small button found on the inside. The fact that it was a 'mute' mask helped to conceal the wearer's identity. On the other hand, the Gnaga, was a mask used by men to dress up as women. The traditional Gnaga outfit includes the clothing worn by working class women and a mask portraying a female cat. It was often worn with a basket under the arm, which usually contained a kitten. Venetian masks are precious artisanal objects, ideal to take home as souvenirs. Numerous ateliers still make them according to ancient traditions. One of the most famous is Ca' Macana, where you can go to admire them, purchase them, decorate your own or simply watch master artisans deftly creating them on-site (www.camacana.com).

Artisanal 'botteghe', tiny jewel-like boutiques and vintage shops, this 'unique' city offers an array of 'unique' locations where you can indulge in an authentic shopping experience and purchase objet d'art, fabrics and accessories that you'll be hard put to find elsewhere. While strolling through its 'calli', you will discover how the tradition cultivated by the latter endows this city with its characteristic vibrancy...

La Bottega dei Mascareri

The workshop of the Boldrin brothers specializes in the crafting of a variety of papier mache Venetian masks, including jesters, elves and characters from the 'Commedia dell'Arte' for a trip back into 18th century Venice. The Mascareri have also worked for the theatre, the cinemas and fashion shows, and are considered among several of the most established manufacturers of collector's items. They were the first mask makers to embellish their masks with decorations by Tiepolo. Open daily 9am-6pm. www.mascareri.com. San Polo, 80. T: 041 5223857 and San Polo, 2720. T: 041 5242887.

Tax Free Refund Guide

According to the Italian law, non-EU resident travellers may be granted VAT relief/refund for goods intended for personal or family use purchased in Italy. This relief is surely an advantage for the foreign travellers: in fact, it allows to save from a minimum of 4% up to a maximum of 22% of the selling price of the goods purchased. Here is a short guide according to the Italian legislation to discover the common system of value added tax exclusively for non-EU resident travellers.

1. VAT (in Italian: IVA) is a value added tax on goods and services, and is part of the European Union's value added tax system.
2. In some cases, travellers may be granted a VAT refund. This refund does not cover the services supplied by hotels, restaurants, taxis or agencies.
3. You may be eligible for a VAT refund provided that:
 - you are a non-EU resident;
 - the goods purchased are intended for personal or family use only and are carried in your luggage;
 - the overall value of the goods purchased exceeds 154,94 Euro (VAT included);
 - the purchase is certified by an invoice. This invoice should include a description of the goods purchased, your personal information as well as the details of your passport or any other equivalent document;

- the goods shall leave the EU territory by the third month following the date of issue of the invoice, as proved by the "customs stamp";
 - from 1 September 2018, tax free invoices in Italy must be electronically transmitted by the national seller to OTELLO information system (Online Tax Refund at Exit: Light Lane Optimization) and their validation is digitally carried out.
 - after the digital "customs stamp" is obtained, OTELLO will send a message to the retailer that all the requirements are met and, as a consequence, the retailer will reimburse the amount due or will settle the tax relief.
 - the invoice is returned to the Italian retailer within four months after the purchase was made. If the invoice is stamped by other EU countries, it needs to be brought to the shop retailer by the fourth month following that of the purchase.
4. The goods purchased and the relevant invoice must be shown at the customs exit point when leaving EU territory (if you intend to pack the purchased items into your check-in luggage, you must go to Customs BEFORE checking in).
 5. After leaving EU territory, the traveller must return the original invoice, regularly endorsed by the customs office, to the Italian retailer. Said invoice must be returned within four months from the date when the document was issued.

6. The refund can be made directly by the Italian retailer (however, make sure that the shop you've chosen displays a "Tax Free Shopping" or "Euro Tax Free" sign in its window).
7. Several Tax-Free companies are able to offer immediate VAT cash refunds when the goods leave either Italian or EU territory (thus exonerating the passenger from having to return the invoice to the retailer). However, this procedure only applies at major international airports or main border crossings. Most major department stores have Tax Free Refund offices.
8. The services provided by Tax-Free companies imply the payment of a small administrative sum which is directly deducted from the amount of VAT refunded to the traveller.
9. In the event of a traveller not receiving a VAT refund within a reasonable period of time, he or she should re-contact the Italian retailer or one of the aforementioned companies.
10. However, please note, VAT cannot be refunded directly by customs offices.

In addition to Murano and Torcello, this island on the Venetian Lagoon should not be missed. Loved (and widely photographed) by tourists, it is famous for its colourful houses, butter biscuits and above all, its handcrafted lace.

With a population of only three thousand inhabitants, the island's row of houses, whose facades boast all the colours of the rainbow, are truly spectacular and make it one of the most picturesque places on earth!

However, the origin of this tradition of painting the houses in bright colours was not only for aesthetic reasons. Legend has it that its fishermen, often confused by frequent banks of fog, devised a chromatic code that would help them identify their own landing piers more easily. Each colour corresponded to a family, to their house and to their address.

BURANO LACE. The island is also the capital of handmade lace, a craft kept alive for centuries by the wives of fishermen waiting for their husbands to return from sea. The work is extremely exacting, with each woman specializing in a single stitch. Since there are seven stitches in total, each piece is passed from woman to woman to finish. Groups of women work diligently for days to produce items, whether large or small, of matchless beauty: trims for dresses, accessories, tablecloths, gloves, umbrellas and masks, all made from this delicate, white lace, crafted with a painstaking attention to detail that has lasted for centuries. While on the island, make sure to visit the Museum of Lace-Making to understand why something so exquisite should not become extinct (Piazza Galuppi, 187).

GASTRONOMIC TRADITION. Butter biscuits known as Buranelli (either ring or S-shaped) are famous on the island and you'll be offered them wherever you go. However, this is not the only specialty that you'll find. The island has a long-standing gastronomic tradition linked, above all, to fresh fish.

» HOW TO REACH BURANO

Vaporetto line number 12 runs from the Venice-Fondamente Nove stop to Burano (1 hour). If you're not in a hurry, the Venetians recommend taking line 14 from San Zaccaria (the Pietà stop), which stops at the Lido. It's a good opportunity to take a look at the venue where the Film Festival is held, and admire the works by MOSE, the huge hydraulic engineering project completed to protect the Lagoon.

Tips to purchase Murano glass

In order to protect local craftsmanship and guarantee the authenticity of recently purchased products, in 1994 the Region of Veneto has created a trademark to guarantee that products have been made in Murano according to the traditional techniques used by master glassblowers. Management of the registered Vetro Artistico® Murano trademark is entrusted to the Consorzio Promovetro Murano, which boasts a membership of fifty companies, the only ones allowed to mark their products with prestigious label. Depending on the type of working process involved, the adhesive sticker can be either red or blue. It also shows the manufacturer's identification code on the top. In 2016, a serial number and a data matrix code were added to the sticker. These serve as additional proof that the product purchased is a genuine Murano-made item. (by G.M.)

ARTISTIC GLASS IN MURANO

Venice and glass: a strong, enduring partnership that has lasted for centuries. It's natural to mention glass when talking about Venice. It's the same as associating the city with the Lagoon, its colours and the plays of light that have served as inspiration for the most iconic creations by local master glass blowers.

The art of solidifying silicon to obtain a hard yet delicate transparent material, suitable for countless purposes, is rooted in the ancient past. According to historians, glass was first made in Mesopotamia in the III millennium B.C. However, several archaeological digs suggest that glassmaking was already practiced in Venice in the 7th century B.C. Furthermore, after the year 1000 A.D., its production had become so important that it was protected by specific laws. There was only one small problem - the presence of glass furnaces in medieval Venice, which was largely built of timber, presented a grave fire hazard. As a result, in 1291, for safety reasons, the Great Council ordered the glass workers to transfer to the Island of Murano, where they created a district that still exists. It was here that in the 13th century eyeglasses were invented, and here, in 1369 that mirrors began to be produced. It was also here, in 1450, that Angelo Barovier invented crystal. Throughout the Renaissance, glass was a rare commodity. It was only in 1827 that glass began to be produced on an industrial level. At that point, blown glass or glass produced by lampworking became a highly prized material used for aesthetic purposes, and achieved the height of its splendor during the Art Nouveau period. Artists including Lalique, Dammouse or Tiffany sought out the glass blowers of Murano to produce their coveted objects. During the mid-twentieth century, real masters of the art including Signoretto, Ballarin, Zanetti and Vidal began to emerge in Murano. Their works are highly coveted objects, true collectors' items that are often displayed at museums. While strolling through the streets of Murano, you'll be spoiled for choice. If you want to make a purchase, bear several criteria in mind. Crafting authentic Murano glass is no easy task and isn't cheap. Large objects require hours of work, so don't expect to take you custom-made lamp home on the same day. Furthermore, each piece is unique, meaning that small imperfections are an integral part of the value of the object. In short, if you come across a shop selling mass-produced items that promises quick delivery times or tempts you with low prices, beware. Apart from some exceptions, it's better to do your glass shopping in Murano rather than in the city of Venice. Don't worry if you want to buy an object but don't have time to wait: the island's glass factories are now equipped to make safe deliveries anywhere in the world.

Tasting

FOOD & WINE

For a romantic dinner

There's no better way to end a fabulous day on the lagoon than a romantic candle-lit dinner at Venice's Bistrot de Venise. The ideal place to savour authentic, seasonal gourmet offerings.

Established in 1993, the Bistrot de Venise is a place where people can meet and savour great cuisine and outstanding vintages while enjoying an array of cultural activities dedicated to the city of Venice including exhibitions and events devoted to art, poetry and photography. Boasting a warm, welcoming atmosphere, at Bistrot de Venise diners can sample an array of different menus based on their individual tastes and desire to experiment. A one-of-a-kind opportunity to rediscover authentic, historic Venetian cuisine with recipes re-imagined by an Anonymous Venetian Chef, Bartolomeo Sacchi also known as Platina, Bartolomeo Scappi and others (from the 14th to 18th centuries): a gastronomic journey back in time, featuring the ancient aromas and flavours of the Serenissima, including sweet and sour dishes, precious spices, rice and stockfish. In addition to the above, the restaurant is also renowned for its traditional, contemporary Venetian cuisine with standouts including fish and seafood from the lagoon, with creative twists on traditional festive dishes. The restaurant also offers more than 60 wines by the glass and 300 highly select Italian and French labels.

Dining in a contemporary setting

The Fiola at Dopolavoro restaurant on the Island of Roses, an exclusive strip of land covering 16 hectares, has a new chef, and a new concept. It is a tranquil, secluded retreat comprising a series of buildings dating back to the 1920s and 1930s. These have been re-imagined in a contemporary key by renowned architect Matteo Thun, and Venetian materials and neutral colours blend harmoniously with the reflections of the lagoon. A unique gourmet destination that's very different to the usual tourist itineraries. The restaurant's new chef, Fabio Trabocchi, a native of the Marche region, has returned home after spending twenty years in the USA, bringing a touch of globalization with him. In spite of Fabio's USA experience, his culinary offerings are a tribute to the Adriatic and to Italy as a whole. The menu features seasonal ingredients sourced from the Rialto Fish Market, but also from the island's private vegetable garden.

Itineraries

LANDMARKS & MUSEUMS

Discover the Royal Palace

A new itinerary has just opened at the Museo Correr, with guided tours by appointment.

The Royal Palace, one of Venice's most exceptional and representative centres of 19th-century political and cultural history, is being returned to the city, thus restoring the Marciana area to its original identity. After a long and meticulous restoration work, the public is now able to visit twenty rooms of Venice's Royal Palace located inside the Museo Correr. Throughout the 19th century and up until 1920 these were the original private apartments of the members of three ruling dynasties: the House of Bonaparte, Habsburg and Savoy.

The restoration marks the completion of work begun in the year 2000, based on a scientific project directed by Fondazione Musei Civici di Venezia and the Venice City Council, supported by the Superintendency and with the invaluable contribution of the French Committee for the Preservation of Venice and patrons from around the world.

The renovated rooms are all decorated, and for the most part sumptuously adorned with tapestries reproduced in the original designs. Moreover, after a succession of complications and relocations, the original furniture from the Royal Palace has finally returned to take its proper place.

ATTRACTIONS & MONUMENTS

Basilica del Redentore

Based on a project by the famous architect Andrea Palladio, the Basilica was built in 1577 on the island of Giudecca. It contains works by Tintoretto, Veronese and other important Venetian artists. It was built to celebrate the deliverance from the Black Death, which killed one third of the population. To commemorate the end of the plague, a solemn festival is still held at the church on the third Sunday of July. www.chorusvenezia.org. Campo Redentore (Giudecca). T: 041 2750462. Vaporetto line 41 and 2 (Redentore stop). Map E6

Basilica di San Marco

This is the most important Catholic church in the city, and one of the most important monuments in Italy. The original church dates back to before the year 1000, while its famous polychrome façade, embellished with mosaics and bas-reliefs, is a 13th century addition. The famous winged lion, a symbol of the city and of the ancient 'Venetian Republic' is depicted on its pediment. Inside, a triumphant array of domes and transepts, mosaics and gold, marble and numerous other treasures. You might have to queue for a time to get inside, but your wait will be well worthwhile. Although admission is free, you will have to pay to see several specific sights. In order not to miss your visit, be sure to inform yourself about the opening hours, as they are often subject to change. Open Mon-Sat 9.30am-4pm; Sun (and Public Holidays) 2pm-4pm. www.basilicasanmarco.it. San Marco, 328. T: 041 2708311. Vaporetto lines 1, 2 (San Marco stop). Map F4

Campanile di San Marco (Bell Tower)

This 98.6 metre bell tower is affectionately known to the Venetians as 'el paron de casa' (the master of the house) because it dominates the city, observing everything that lies below it. Resting lightly on the exquisite Loggetta del Sansovino, it has a particularly recognizable shape and a rich history. The original medieval bell tower was modified several times, and rebuilt entirely when it unexpectedly collapsed in 1902. It is worth going up to the tower, to enjoy a breathtaking view over the city. Although admission is not free, it is often included in joint tickets. Opening times are subject to change. T: 041 5225205. Vaporetto lines 1, 2 (San Marco stop). Map F4

Canal Grande (Grand Canal)

Although it is known as 'the most beautiful street in the world', the Canal Grande is the main waterway of Venice and much more. Lined on both sides by an uninterrupted series of palaces, churches, hotels, and other public buildings, it offers a journey back into history, evoking the pomp and splendor of the ancient Serenissima. For centuries, the Canal has witnessed lavish parties and workshop events, religious processions, capital executions, historical regattas and epidemics. Those visiting Venice should dedicate a few hours to a cruise on the Canal, not only for the pleasure of this experience, but because it offers several of the best panoramic views of Venetian palaces. It is almost impossible to list all of them, but for more information you can visit the www.canalgrandevenezia.it website. For excursions and boat cruises visit www.canalgrande.it, or ask your concierge.

Located on the left-hand side of the Grand Canal, just beyond the Church of the Madonna della Salute, you will come across a building that seems strange and unfinished, but is also elegant and well-tended. The Palazzo Venier dei Leoni, formerly home to the prominent and powerful Venier family, was originally planned to become one of the most sumptuous buildings in Venice. Construction of the palazzo began in or around 1748, but was halted after only one floor was completed. Undeterred by its rather sketchy shape, and upon seeing the palazzo with its beautiful garden, eccentric American heiress Peggy Guggenheim, a lover of modern art, la dolce vita and men, fell in love with it. She purchased Palazzo Venier in 1948, and moved in with her collection of contemporary art, subsequently opening both the palazzo and her extraordinary collection of artworks to the public. In 1980, after her death, the Peggy Guggenheim Collection was bequeathed to the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation, which also manages the Solomon R. Guggenheim in New York and the Guggenheim Museum in Bilbao. In 1985, Palazzo Venier dei Leoni was officially converted into a museum. Today, thanks to its 20th century collection of art, it is considered one of the most important museums in Europe. The collection includes masterpieces of Cubism, Futurism, European Abstractism, American Abstract Surrealism and Expressionism, as well as works by illustrious artists like Picasso, Pollock, Kandinsky, Miró, de Chirico and Dalí. It also hosts prestigious temporary exhibitions. www.guggenheim-venice.it

A Renaissance complex consisting of a church and adjoining palace, it was built as a sign of devotion to San Rocco who was called upon to protect the plague-stricken population of Venice during the 15th century. The interiors are filled with numerous treasures, including an impressive number of works by Tintoretto as well those by Tiepolo and Giorgione. Chiesa della Madonna dell'Orto

This is one of the largest churches in Venice, and, according to popular belief, is named after a statue of the Virgin Mary which supposedly had miraculous powers. It contains a significant number of artworks, mostly by Tintoretto and Bellini, but also by Titian and Palma the Younger. The complex also houses the smaller church of San Marziale, dating back to before the year 1000. This church can only be visited by booking. Ghetto di Venezia

Although documentation chronicles the presence of a Jewish community in Venice from before the year 1000, it was only during the 6th century, due to political unrest in Europe and a significant increase in non-Christian immigrants that, for the first time, the Venetian Senate, issued a decree stating that the Jewish population should move to a specific part of the city, where they could be better 'controlled'. Thus Jews were forced to move to this, then, remote northwestern corner of Venice, to an abandoned site of a 14th-century foundry ('ghetto' is old Venetian dialect for "foundry," a word that would soon be used throughout Europe and the world to depict an area where isolated minority groups lived. The Venetian Ghetto nevertheless became a thriving, vibrant district. In 1797, when Napoleon rolled into town, the ghetto was disbanded as an institution, and Jews were free to move elsewhere. Today it is still the center of Venice's ever-diminishing community of Jewish families. Vaporetto lines 4.1, 4.2, 5.1 (Ponte Guglie stop). Map D2

Palazzo Ca' Vendramin Calergi (Casinò di Venezia)

Overlooking the Grand Canal, this building houses the oldest casino in the world. An age-old destination, for aristocratic travelers from both East and West, Venice was the first city in the world to open a gaming house way back in 1683. Today its old-world ambience continues to play host to several of the world's most classical games. The casino is open to everyone aged 18 and over and proper attire is required. www.casinovenetia.it. Cannaregio, 2040 (Calle Colombina). Vaporetto lines 1, 2 (San Marcuola stop). Map E3

Piazza San Marco (St. Mark's Square)

Known throughout the world, this square is the heart of Venice and its most symbolic landmark. It consists of a central, trapezoid-shaped unit integrated with other areas. Measuring 170 metres in length, it faces directly onto the water and is surrounded by several magnificent stately buildings. Its incalculable scenic beauty makes it one of the most widely-photographed places in the world. The best thing to do here is to look around and exult, but don't forget that the square has a number of specific landmark sites, whose interiors can also be visited: the Basilica of San Marco (see listing), the Bell Tower (see listing), Palazzo Ducale (see Museums listings), the Clock Tower (see listing) and some 18th century cafés, the Florian and the Quadri, to mention the best-known... Ponte dei Sospiri (Bridge of Sighs)

The Bridge of Sighs is a Baroque bridge that, by crossing the Rio di Palazzo, once connected the Palazzo Ducale to the prisons, and today it is one of Venice's most romantic sights. The 'sighs' from which its name derives are not those of lovers, but those of condemned prisoners, emitted as they were led down to the cells. It can be accessed on a visit to the Palazzo Ducale. Ponte di Rialto (Rialto Bridge)

This is the oldest and most beautiful of the four bridges crossing the Grand Canal. Witness to centuries of history, it is exciting to cross it (shutterbugs permitting), but even more spectacular when seen from the water, perhaps aboard a gondola. Originally built during medieval times as a pontoon bridge at the canal's narrowest point to facilitate access to the popular Rialto Market, it is still a hub of commerce and is lined on both sides by shops. Unfortunately, it is not accessible to everyone; between upward and downward slopes, it includes as many as 120 steps. San Polo, 30125 (access from Ruga dei Oresi or from Salizada Pio X). San Giorgio Maggiore

Boasting a monastery and an adjoining museum (see Museum listings), the church of San Giorgio Maggiore sits on the little island of San Giorgio Maggiore across from St. Mark's square. One of the masterpieces of Andrea Palladio, the church, and the entire complex, which holds a number of marvelous surprises including a maze, is worth visiting. Santa Maria della Salute

Generally referred to as "La Salute," this crown jewel of 17th-century baroque architecture proudly stands at a commercially and aesthetically important point, almost directly opposite the Piazza San Marco, where the Grand Canal empties into the lagoon. Designed by Longhena, whose work was influenced by Palladio, it was constructed to honor the Virgin Mary for delivering Venice from the plague of 1630. On 21 November each year, a popular religious celebration, marking the official end of the Black Death, is held here. The church is also famous for its organ concerts. Scala Contarini del Bovolo

Palazzo Contarini is an exquisite, late Gothic building. However, what makes it such a popular attraction today, was the addition, by its architects, in 1499, of an amazing, external 'bovolo' (snail-shell) stairwell enclosed in a cylinder perforated like lace. The architectural beauty of the stairwell, combined with the view that can be enjoyed on reaching the top, is well worth a visit. Scuola Grande dei Carmini

Housed in a 16th century palazzo, it is the seat of an ancient brotherhood and all its original furnishing and a number of priceless oil paintings have been preserved intact. Teatro La Fenice

Twice destroyed by fire and twice restored to its former splendour (the last time was between 1996 and 2003), for centuries it has been Venice's principal stage for world-class opera, music, theater, and ballet. However, its high point came in the 19th century when it hosted the 'premieres' of operas by Rossini, Bellini, Donizetti and Verdi. Not only strongly associated with Venice's cultural heritage, it is also a stunning feat of architecture. teatrolafenice.it. Ticket office T: 041 2424. San Marco, 1965 (Campo San Fantin). The islands

Although the whole of Venice lies on an archipelago, an 'excursion to the islands' generally means a half-day cruise on a boat to visit the islands of Murano, Torcello and Burano, three charming, small islands, rich in history and tradition. Murano is famous throughout the world for its hand-blown glass (artisanal workshops still display glassmakers at work). Torcello, birthplace of the lagoon, once a thriving town with 8,000 inhabitants, is today a semi-rural island with only 17 permanent residents and two medieval churches that speak poignantly of past glories, and Burano, one of the most photographed sights in the world, thanks to colourful houses reflected in its canals. Burano is also famous for its artisanal lace work and a particular kind of biscuit, which also resembles lace. Find out more and buy tickets for your trip to these magical destinations. Visitors love these islands, and there may be a risk of not finding a seat on the boat. See Map page 46

FOR REAL VENETIAN LOVERS

A trip to Venice is a unique experience: to make sure it's unforgettable, here are some insider tips to make the most of your visit.

01

DRESS

It is forbidden to walk around Venice in a bathing costume or bare-chested. Swimming in Venice's canals is prohibited. The Lido is the go-to place for bathing. Venice is an elegant 'grand dame' and a certain dress code is 'de rigueur'.

02

STREET RULES

Many 'calli' (streets) in Venice are narrow. Keep to the right and avoid loitering. Make sure to take quick 'clicks' on Venice's bridges especially when they're crowded.

OBSTRUCTING PUBLIC TRANSPORT

When travelling on public transport, please respect the other passengers: avoid blocking the entrance or exit, store your bags where the boat staff tells you and remove your backpacks.

04

ACQUA ALTA

In the event of 'acqua alta' (flooding), use the raised walkways provided. Keep to the right and don't hang around. Don't step into the water, because it's dirty.

05

BIKES AND OTHERS MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION

In Venice, adults are prohibited from riding bikes or using or carrying kick scooters. Use the parking lots located at the entrance to the city.

EATING

Apart from restaurants, picnicking is forbidden in the area around St. Mark's Basilica. Website www.where-venice.com features a list of the best restaurants and 'bacari' where you can sample delectable Mediterranean cuisine. Please Note: it's not done to eat 'gelato' before lunch and cappuccino is a 'no no' in the afternoon.

07

VENETIAN SOUVENIR

In the midst of its myriad offerings, always make sure to purchase authentic Venetian goods. These include Murano beads, local biscuits, artisanal prints and masks. By purchasing items from local artisans, you're supporting the Venetian craft industry.

Scuola Grande di San Rocco

The headquarters of the San Rocco Brotherhood, this stunning building, to which hardly any modifications have been made, hosts more than 60 masterpieces by artists of the likes of Giorgione, Tiepolo and Titian, still presented in their original layout. Its establishment represented an important moment in the history of 16th century Venetian art, above all thanks to Tintoretto's famous cycle of Old and New Testament scenes. Open daily, 9.30am-5.30pm. Full price ticket €10; Scuola Grande + church €8. www.scuolagrandesanrocco.it. San Polo, 3052 (Campo San Rocco stop). T: 041 5234864. Teatro La Fenice

There never has been such an evocative name. 230 years ago, the Phoenix, a legendary bird who rises from the ashes, gave its name to what is now the best-loved and most famous theatre in Venice. La Fenice's history is particularly unusual. During the second half of the 18th century, the prestigious Teatro San Benedetto was partially destroyed by a fire, but rebuilt by the 'Nobile Società dei Palchettisti', the owners of the property. However, due to a judicial ruling by the Venier family, it was forced to sell the complex. This prompted the Association to build another larger, more luxurious theatre, which they called La Fenice as a tribute to its rebirth.

In the 19th century, it staged numerous premieres of operas by Rossini, Bellini, Donizetti and Verdi. In 1836, a fire damaged part of the structure which was rebuilt within a year. In 1996, another devastating fire almost destroyed the theatre completely. However, despite the serious damage, La Fenice rose once again from the ashes, more splendid than ever before.

If you want additional information about this legendary theatre and its 'stars', you can book a tour that allows access to its lavish interiors that are decorated with stuccoes and gilded ornamentation, including a visit to the rooms hosting a permanent exhibition dedicated to Maria Callas.

The Teatro La Fenice is usually open for tours daily from 9.30am to 6pm, although variations may occur in the schedule for artistic or technical reasons. The Theatre hosts a Maria Callas exhibition focused on her Venetian years.

MAPS & INFO

Venice, the floating city

Some information and invaluable tips to experience the best that this magical city on water has to offer.

Italians (at least many of them), may already know that Venice... actually floats! Unlike Amsterdam or Saint Petersburg, it is not just furrowed by canals, bordered by roads and pavements. In Venice, canals are the only available communication route, bearing in mind that part of the city extends over a handful of beautiful islands that are scattered across the Lagoon. For this reason, the lagoon city can only be crossed on foot or by boat. Cars, motorbikes, bicycles and even roller skates are strictly forbidden. But this is not all. At times Venice may find itself... under water! The acqua alta phenomenon – the result of heavy rainfall and high tides – can cause the water level to rise by as much as a meter, forcing everyone to walk on raised plank walkways, or don rain boots (many shops, including tobacconists, sell disposable ones) in order to cross the city's flooded calli, campielli and salizade. Calli, campielli and salizade are Venetian words used to identify streets, squares and alleys while sestieri is the local word indicating the six districts the city is divided into: San Marco, Dorsoduro, Cannaregio, Santa Croce, San Polo and Castello. This division dates back to the 12th century and also includes areas such as La Giudecca, the Island of San Giorgio Maggiore (San Marco) and the Island of San Michele, home to the city's cemetery (Castello). Street numbers in each sestiere start from 1 and often reach four figures, for example, one of the last numbers of the sestiere of Castello is 7,000.

You need to learn them if you want to find your way through the spectacular, maze-like historic centre.

Venice also has its own network of public... and private transportation: its vaporetti, real waterbuses, are the most popular craft used by locals, which is why they are often very crowded during peak hours. These engine-powered water taxis are able to whiz across the lagoon in a heartbeat, but for those who prefer a unique, incredibly romantic experience, the famous, distinctive gondola is an absolute must. This elegant, black, one-oared rowing boat drifts gently across the water, while its gondolier sings an entire repertoire of traditional Venetian folk songs. It goes without saying that the waters of the canals are not suitable for swimming, and their banks are often slippery. Be careful not to be so focused on your selfie stick that you walk into a canal because you might be in for some rather unpleasant surprises!

GETTING AROUND VENICE

Because it is a relatively small, compact city (a 45-minute walk from North to South) whose main points of interest are situated just a short distance from each other, visiting Venice on foot is the ideal solution.

Vaporetti - An efficient network of water bus routes covers the entire city and includes transportation to the islands. The service is active 24/24h but runs less frequently between 9.30pm and 6am. Landing stages are located at central points around the city (including Piazzale Roma, Rialto, Piazza San Marco...).

Tickets - Although paper tickets are available at main embarkation points and from authorized resellers displaying the ACTV logo, electronic tickets can also be pre-purchased online. ACTV: Piazzale Roma. T: 041 2424. www.actv.it. There are 6 different types of tickets, ranging from hourly tickets (€7.50 for a 75' regular route) to a weekly pass (€60) for unlimited travel on almost all lines. TIP The boat trip from one bank of the Grand Canal to the other costs 2 euro (only cash). You can pre-purchase reduced-price tickets from Venice Connected: www.veniceconnected.com. IMOB smart cards are available at all ACTV ticket offices. Although they allow you to save on official rates, they are only recommended for long-term visits.

Gondolas - These traditional craft are among the best-known tourist attraction for those wishing to experience a view of Venice that is anything but pedestrian. They are used almost exclusively by tourists (and Venetians on their wedding days). TIP Before embarking, we suggest that you check official rates

(approximately €80 for 45 minutes and €100 after 7pm). Agree on a price, time limit and singing in advance to avoid unexpected surcharges. Associazione dei Gondolieri T. 041 5285075. www.gondolavenezia.it

Traghetti (Ferries) - 'Traghetti' are gondolas that cross the Grand Canal in 8 points. 'Traghetti' rides cost just €2 for non-residents (for holders of City Pass Venezia Unica or ACTV passes, rides cost 0.70) and operate almost non-stop. Four ferry services operate in Venice.

Taxi - Water taxis with a cabin (private water taxis) are available for hire from 16 landing stages, including Lido Aeroporto Marco Polo, piazzale Roma, Ferrovia, Rialto and San Marco, or from your hotel. TIP Although private water taxis can be costly, they are the fastest and most practical means of getting around Venice. Ask your concierge.

Car - The city can be accessed from the mainland by car, thanks to an elevated section (a 4km bridge, the longest in Italy, also known as the 'Translagunare'), with limited parking options at garages in Piazzale Roma or on the Island of Tronchetto. Prices for 24-hour parking cost approximately €30 euro.

TIP It's advisable to travel to Mestre by car (24-hour parking costs approximately €15 euro) and then continue on to Venice by public transport.
